LONDON, December 12-5 A. M .- The Prince of Wales, according to an official despatch just received from Sandringham, passed a very restless night. There are no signs of improvement in his condition, and his death is imminent at any time during to-day, from suffocating attacks. His strength is not so good, and what sleep he has is foll swed by re ties :ness and inquietude. The chest symptoms are bad. The Princess Alexandra is greatly exhausted. Princess Royal Victoria, wife of the Crown Prince of Germany, is bourly expected at Sandringham. The groom of the Prince is somewhat worse, and is threatened with inflammation of the lungs. The excitement in London and in the provinces is greater than during the Crimean war. SANDRINGHAM, December 12-Noon. The Prince has been restless all the morning, but his condition is unaltered.

A Few Facts from South Carolina. Room Hus, S. C., November 11, 1871. TO THE EDITOR OF THE ADVANCE: A year ago A was placed in charge of the Western Union Telegraph office, located at this point, a little village on the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta Railroad, in the District of York. I am thus in one of the Counties in which mertial law prevails at this time. A Northern man by birth and education, I came to the South expecting to encounter bitter prejudices, to meet with coldness; I heard and put faith in the malicious and slanderous reports which a certain class of Northern politicians are so industrious in spreading. I was of course prepared for insult and rude-ness; but far from this being the case, I have met with universal kindness and courtesy from the citizens of this place. A year's residence in the South has sufficed to excite in me sentiments of sincere regard and esteem for these brave and true-hearted, but down-trodden, ruined and outraged people. They are now the victims of such cruel tyranny, and are suffering so much from gross in justice and unrighteous oppression at the hands of the Federal Government, hat I cannot refrain from doing what little may lie in my power to call the attention of the country to the arbitrary proceedings now being carried on in the whipped or driven from the country upper Districts of South Carolina, and This retributive justice is what is known aid in the work of arousing the men of the Northern States to a sense of the galling, grinding despotism to which these unfortunate people are being subjected. The nine Counties placed under martial law comprise one of the fairest portions of the State. It is the up-country of South Carolina, a fine cotton and grain land, quite thickly settled by a thrifty, industrious yeomanry, whose ancestors were mostly Scotch and Irish emigrants from the Southern portions of Pennsylvania. There were large slave-holders in this part of the State. The negroes now are in a mino-rity in all of these "rebellious" (?) Couns, except two or three. When martial law was declared, profound peace prevailed throughout these Counties. It was in the middle of October when President Grant's proclamation declaring us to be in a state of rebellion burst upon the people of this country. The farmers at the time were busy gathering in their corn and cotton, the negroes were hard at work. No Ku Kluxing was going on; no Union League outrages were being committed; no disturbances of any sort were occurring. The country was at peace and entirely free from all domestic violence. Party spirit was toning down, partisan animo-sity was being allayed, and an era of general prosperity and good feeling be-tween the blacks and whites was beginning to dawn upon these people. They were not in "a state of rebellion. There was no resistance to State or Federal authority. There were no armed be in opposition to the Federal Govern-and organized bands of men opposing ment. It is done to secure the triumph the execution of the laws, obstructing the course of justice, or enacting domes tic violence, us is alleged by the administration in Washington. The harsh measures adopted by the Federal autho-rities for the suppression of the Ku Klux Klans of this State, are not only unnecessary and uncalled for by the State authorities, but are cruel and inhuman; totally unworthy of the American people. I live here in the heart of the so-called rebellions district; I see the practical working of these measures, and I tell you the manner in which the law is being enforced is arbitrary, tyrannical and barbarous in the extreme. Not only has the writ of habeas corpus been suspended, but one would suppose from the manner in which the military are ar-

like a thunderbolt from a cloudless sky

resting and imprisoning citizens, that all law had been set aside. The people are as completely at the mercy of the soldiers as if it were war times. Arrests are made upon bare suspicion. Any Georgia, new, (gold)...

Exactly three weeks they have lain in jail, close prisoners, guarded by United States soldiers, and to day, November 11, they are wholly ignorant of the cause of arrest. Is it not cruel thus wantonly to confine these young men and keep them totally in the dark as to the offence with which they are charged? Three of these men are married; their wives and children are left at home, dependent upon friends for support, and there are hundreds of other families in Macon and Brunswick, the country left in the same plight. No white man felt sufe in his house at night; he knew not at what moment the torch would be applied to his dwelling. I, myself, a Northern man, and, at that time, a four months' resident of the South, aided the white men of this little village in guarding the place at night against negro incendiarism. And for all this burning, none was punished by the courts; what was the consequence? Barn-burners were hung by men in dis guise, and their aiders and abettors were as Ku Kluxing. It was lawlessness or no law at all. The white people were driven to desperation. They were compelled to resist violence with violence, and to use the halter and scourge against the men who wielded the Winchester rifle and the torch. The mysterious riders of the "Invisible Empire" did their work with a vengeance; there is no doubt of that; but they stopped the barn-barning, and forced Gov. Scott to disarm his militia in some Counties. After this the country became quiet, and the whites and blacks were beginning to forget their past animosities and work along together in peace and amity, when Grant's proclamation fell among them like a bomb-shell. From the confession of some of the prisoners, it is nothing more or less than local bands of vigilance committees; that they only exccuted retributive justice. FORT HILL,

And for many years the seidence of the late HON. JOHN C. CALHOUN,

Situate on Seneca River, adjoining lands of A. F. Lewis, J. W. Crawford and others, about four miles from Pendleton village, and in one of the most desirable neighborhoods in the State. The dwelling is commodious and handsome, and is located on an eminence, with gentle alopes, which commands a pleasing view of the adjacent country, with the mountains in the back ground. The tract is represented by a re-survey made in 1853, as containing eleven hundred and fifty acres are said to be good river bottom; much of the uplands lie well and produce cotton finely. The out-buildings are suitable in number and size, and are convenient for this fine farm.

TERMS.—One-half cash; balance on a credit of one year, with interest—the purchaser to give bond (without surety) and a mortgage of the premises to secure the purchase money, and to pay extra for stamps and hegessary papers.
